War Bond Pledge Campaign Leaders Outline Plans For Canvass Starting Wednesday

Captains Confer With Chairman L. H. Colley, Will Select Teams Over Weekend; Receive Final Instructions Tuesday Evening

Captains of the War Savings Bond house-to-house pledge canvass, to be conducted in Salem next week, met with the War Savings staff, headed by L. H. Colley, chairman, in the Memorial building last night and completed details of the campaign

Each one of the 15 captains will select ten workers over the weekend and these 150 solicitors will start out bright and early next Wednesday morning to give every householder and every wage earner in the city an opportunity to sign a pledge blank and receive a window emblem which signifies their support for an America at war.

According to plans mapped out last night, the canvass is expected to be completed on Thursday and Friday. Each pledge taker will be given 20 homes to contact, and cards designating their territory will be given them before starting the canvass.

Workers Meet Tuesday

These 150 workers and their 15 captains will assemble in the Memorial building at 8 p. m. Tuesday, to receive instructions and supplies from the War Savings staff.

Homes missed in the general canvass Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and householders who may be absent when the pledge taker calls, will be re-checked later so no one will have cause to feel he was overlooked.

The ledge is a promise to lend the government a regular portion of each pay check and the loan is to be made through the purchase of War Savings Bonds, which return ample interest

It is not a tax and not a gift.

It is an investment and a method of preserving a portion of the average family saving.

The promise, which is to be made voluntarily and will be kept confidential, will remain in effect until all war needs are met or until the pledgor is no longer financially able to keep it.

Buyers to Sign, Too

Many individuals are buying War Savings Bonds, through payroll allotments at places of employment, through banks or the postoffice or direct from the treasury department.

Such purchasers should sign the pledge card. It does not mean for the many additional purchase or promise. It simply puts their present commitment on record and permits them to receive the window emblem.

In such instances, husbands are urged to inform their wives of the amount of their payroll deduction, so the latter may enter it on the pledge card. Housewives are urged to get the same information from roomers who may be away at work during the day.

The pledge is not an order for the purchase of bonds; in fact, the pledge taker is not permitted to take such orders, but to instruct the pledgor where and how he or she can get the bonds.

By taking pledges, the treasury department of the United States will be able to compute the extent of Salem's willingness — the nation's willingness — to voluntarily finance the war.

122,000 Will Register

COLUMBUS May 23—State selective service officials estimate that 122,000 Ohioans between the ages of 18 and 20 will sign up in the fifth registration June 30.

RAF HAMMERS FRENCH AREAS

Violent Explosions Heard On English Side of Channel

(By Associated Press)

LONDON, May 23.—Violent explosions on the French coast rocked towns on the British side of the English channel today as vast squadrons of the RAF swept to the offensive side once more after a night attack on the Nazi submarine nest at St. Nazaire.

Observers at Folkestone said the fliers sped out at such height their only visible signs were vapor trails high in the sky. These soon were joined by others in intricate, winding patterns which meant, watchers said, that German fighters were offering resistance.

The night attacks, which included mine-laying operations in enemy waters, were announced by the air ministry. It said all the raiders returned safely.

LARGE DRAFT UNIT TO LEAVE MONDAY

Names of Men Will Be Released Following Examinations

Close to 100 district men will depart from Salem Monday morning in the largest local draft call to date.

The draftees, who are scheduled to board busses at the Memorial building headquarters at 8 a. m., will go to a U. S. army examining center where they will be given final physical examinations. The names of those accepted will then be released, local draft board officials explained.

Friends and relatives of the prospective soldiers are expected to be on hand to wish the men Godspeed. R. L. Hutcheson, commander of Charles H. Carey post, and his draftee sendoff committee, said the Salem High school band would be on hand Monday morning. A parade through town is likely, he added.

The draftees have been instructed to report at the Memorial building at 7 a. m.

VETERANS' GRAVES WILL BE DECORATED

Between 75 and 80 graves of war veterans will be decorated with new American flags tomorrow by members of Charles H. Carey post No. 56, American Legion.

The Legionnaires are requested to meet at the Legion rooms at 9:30 a. m. before going to Hope and Grandview cemeteries.

The graves of the soldiers are decorated annually by the Legion members on the Sunday preceding Memorial day.

There's No Reason For War Optimism, Analysts Explain

Observers Point Out Why Conflict Probably Won't End This Year

A surprising amount of pleasant but vague talk about how the war "is going to end this year" provided the background for President Roosevelt's cautionary remarks of yesterday to the effect that, on the contrary, it was going to be a long war.

As Mr. Roosevelt said, there was no special reason for this wave of optimism. Apparently, however, it stemmed from a combination of the repulsion of the Japanese fleet in the Coral sea, the preliminary reports on the Russian offensive before Kharkov, and on the "gloom offensive" which has come out of enemy Germany itself, in the speeches of Hitler, Goerring & Co.

Overlooked By Optimists

What has been overlooked by the optimists are these facts:

1. The Japanese fleet north of Australia remains an extremely sinister factor.

2. The Red army's Kharkov offensive is a preventive military action, designed to weaken the power of the expected German offensive against the Caucasus which today appears to be in its developing stages, despite heavy German losses in material.

3. The Hitler-Goering lamentations about how tough the going is for Germany were carefully wrapped up and delivered in America by the Nazi short wave radio "news" services because the Nazis wanted them to be believed.

Several keen students of the Nazi propaganda strategy have become convinced in recent days that Hitler's present efforts are directed toward creating an early military stalmate and that, to this end, he is trying to build up a peace mood among the people of the United Nations.

Cite Axis Broadcasts

Axis radio broadcasts certainly bear this out. Yesterday, while the Tokyo propagandists were busy arguing that "China and Australia are fighting over American aid, and are able to get nothing but promises," Berlin radio was covering the American home front thus:

"News stories" about rising wages are "giving the U. S. A. government shivers" over inflation.

Alternating reports of vast profits for oil companies in Rumania and allegedly decreasing returns for U. S. petroleum industries.

"Labor news" about how contact with Russia is going to "undermine" workers' morale in America.

All this could have but one purpose: To plant in American minds the fear of the consequences of a long struggle.

In the county commissioner race, the committee endorsed John Smith of St. Clair township for a second term.

GEN. CHIANG'S TROOPS HALT JAPS' ATTACK

Healf of Sea-Borne Invasion Forces Killed On East Coast

CLAIM 25,000 OTHER TROOPS DRIVEN OFF

Foochow Threat Lessened, But Japs Advance On Other Points

(By Associated Press)

Chinese headquarters reported today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies had slaughtered more than half of a sea-borne Japanese invasion force at one point on China's east coast and repulsed 25,000 other enemy troops attempting to land under the guns of 10 warships near Foochow, capital of Fukien province.

Survivors of the first Japanese force, who gained a foothold Wednesday on Chuanshih island at the mouth of the Min river in Fukien province, were said to have fled to their ships, abandoning huge quantities of equipment.

While the threat to Foochow appeared to have been diminished, other Japanese columns driving into neighboring Chekiang province were reported advancing rapidly on Kinhwa, the privisional capital of Chekiang province and gateway to China's interior.

Chinese dispatches acknowledged the invaders were attacking Iwu, 32 miles northeast of Kinhwa, after a 15-mile advance in 24 hours. A Tokyo broadcast said the Japanese had captured Iwu and advanced seven miles farther south, flanking Kinhwa on the east.

On other fronts in the far Pacific, land fighting appeared dormant but Allied warplanes kept up relentless attack against Japanese bases in Burma and in the fringe of islands above Australia.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied bombers knocked out two more ships of Japan's gathering invasion armadas north of Australia and destroyed or crippled 13 more enemy planes.

In Burma, RAF bombers struck at Japanese-held Akyab Airdrome, potential base for an invasion of India, and attacked Japanese river craft nearby.

The diplomas will be presented by Supt. Schools E. S. Kerr to the graduates who will have completed 7,200 hours of shop work, in addition to 12 study credits received at the rate of three a year.

Entertainment after the dinner will be provided by W. L. Ross, Salem magician.

Total enrollment in the Trades Class, which is jointly sponsored by the school board and local industries, is 160 students, Cameron said. The unit had its beginning in 1930 with a nucleus of six pupils.

Fake Fire Gives "Rookie" Firemen Genuine Workout

Auxiliary Crews Eat Smoke; Dr. M. W. Riegel, First "Casualty", Is Walloped with Hoze Nozzle

Now that it's over, the story can be told.

During the past week Salem's auxiliary firemen have undergone their baptism of smoke and are none the worse for the experience.

Each night during the past week Chief Vincent Malloy and the regular firmen have taken an auxiliary crew to the old rubber plant to practice.

Under prearranged plans, two of the regular firemen would sneak away to the building and start a smoke fire in the basement. Soon the night watchman would run from the place with an alarm.

Realistically, Chief Malloy sent his raw recruits into the building with charged lines. The smoke was plenty thick and before long the auxiliary firemen were seeking exits where the air was purer.

There were no "casualties" until last night when one of them, Dr. M. W. Riegel, was hit on the head with a nozzle and knocked back down the basement stairs as he attempted to come up for air. He was unhurt.

Next week the fire aids begin studying a first aid course and will meet in the council chambers of city hall.

SUPPER HELD FOR CONFIRMANDS' UNIT

The Luther league of the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church entertained members of the confirmation class of last Sunday at a coverdish supper Friday evening in the church.

A piano solo, "Butterflies," was presented by Doris Eyton, and a declamation, "More Than Conquerors," was given by Betty Cibula, who will represent the local congregation in the annual Luther league declamation contest at the Greenford Lutheran church at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. The winner of the state contest will be given a tuition scholarship at Wittenberg college, Springfield.

A social hour followed the program.

6 MISSING IN FLASH FLOOD

Believed Drowned As Watter Sweeps Pennsylvania Section

(By Associated Press)

HONESDALE, Pa., May 23—Six persons were reported missing and believed drowned today in one of a series of flash floods that swept through eastern Pennsylvania, making hundreds homeless and paralyzing transportation over wide areas.

The Lackawaxen river, fed by recent rains, burst through the Seeleyville dam three miles above this northeastern Pennsylvania community and sent a six-foot wall of water rushing through the streets just before daybreak.

Telephone company officials reported several houses were toppled over by the flood and it was believed those missing were trapped in their sleep. Communication with the town was difficult.

Reports from the anthracite countes, particularly hard hit, indicated the property damage would run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Several collieries were forced to shut down as steadily climbing streams endangered underground workings.

The Schuylkill, Lehigh and Lackawanna rivers and scores of tributaries rolled over their banks under the impetus of recent rains, some of them up to 10 feet above flood stage.

Residents reported "only four or five houses" remaining on Delaware street in Honesdale where there had been 15. Most of the occupants of these houses were evacuated last night.

The federal state flood forecasting service at Harrisburg said only small tributaries were at dangerous levels and that the bigger streams were not expected to reach damaging proportions.

Most of the rampaging creeks crested by dawn and were receding slowly.

Farmers, Halted by Rain, Envision Loss

COLUMBUS, May 23.—Delays in spring planting, caused by the weather, are costing Ohio farmers money.

Crop experts have no means of estimating the harm immediately, but Dr. Robert D. Lewis, head of the Ohio State university agronomy department, says this rural rhyme states the loss per acre fairly:

"A bushel a day
Is the price we pay,
For planting corn
After the middle of May."

The delay, Lewis asserted, "tends to mean lower yields at the end of the year, but on the other side of the ledger is the good effect of moisture on hay and pasture crops. This means increased milk production, and Ohio is a 'dairy state.'"

Meanwhile, H. C. Ramsower, director of agriculture extension work at the university, advised farmers worrying over harvest labor next fall to turn livestock into corn fields and let them eat their fill.

"The greatest labor shortage will occur at corn harvest time, so 'hogging down' corn will be an economical method this year," he asserted.

THREE INJURED IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Steubenville Driver Is Fined Here After Collision

Three persons were injured in three district traffic mishaps last night, the state patrol reported.

Earl Rue, Jr., 19, of Minerva, and his companion, Edna Brown, 16, of East Rochester, received cuts and bruises when their automobile was struck by another machine driven by J. A. Pace, 24, of Steubenville, at the junction of Routes 30 and 9 in Hanoverton at 3:30 a. m. today.

Pace, who was arrested by the patrol on a charge of reckless driving was fined $20 and costs later at a hearing here before Mayor R. R. Johnson.

Merle Leek, 43, of Salineville, received several fractured ribs when his automobile and another operated by Hermon Reed, 22, of Salineville, collided on Route 644 near Salineville at 11 p. m.

No one was reported injured when machines driven by Carl R. Tubaugh, 21, of Malvern, and Susie Middleton, 50, of Philadelphia, Pa., crashed on Route 14, just northwest of Salem, at 12:30 p. m. Friday.

ARREST IS THIRD FOR TRUCK DRIVER

Henry J. Steitz, 23, of Lisbon, will begin thinking Salem state highway patrolmen have it in for him.

The Lisbon coal trucker operator was arrested yesterday for the third time on a charge of speeding.

Clocked at 60 miles an hour on the Damascus road, Steitz was fined $5 and costs at a hearing before Mayor Lloyd Culler in nearby Washingtonville.

Harry Woods, 37, of Lisbon, arrested by the patrol on a charge of driving an overweight truck, drew a fine of $20 and costs in Mayor R. R. Johnson's court here.

MEXICO READY TO FACE AXIS

Congressional Approval of War Declaration Is Awaited

(By Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, May 23.—Mexico lacked only the formality of apparently certain congressional approval today to become a full-fledged ally in the war against the Axis.

Her decision was made rapidly last night as a wave of public fury swept the country over the news that Axis submarines had sunk the second Mexican merchant ship within eight days.

Even while awaiting President Manuel Avila Camacho's formal proclamation of war, the first in Mexico's history, the republic put precautionary measures against Axis aliens into force and took its first military steps.

The cabinet announced that congress would be called in special session "to authorize the president to declare the existence of a state of war."

Congress must be convened within 10 days, but next Thursday was set tentatively for the session and there were indications that the aroused public might insist on a meeting still earlier, possibly next Monday or Tuesday.

The government's statement clearly refined the reasons that swept Mexico toward war—the Axis' sinking of the Mexican tanker Potrero Del Llano off Florida, its refusal to accept a protest of that sinking and then its sinking Wednesday of the tanker Faja De Oro, all within eight days.

Mexico's entry into the war would place on the side of the Allies a nation of 20,000,000, the most populous in Latin-America except for Brazil. Mexico has a standing army of 70,000, 400,000 more semi-trained men ready to be called and a navy of 15 ships already active on patrol in the Pacific.

Salem Youths Learn How To Chart Army Bombers

Two Salem boys are among a group of eight new navigation cadets at Ellington field, Texas, world's largest multi-motor flying school, who are learning the complex art of charting the warpath of a U. S. army bomber to its Axis target.

They are Aviation Cadet Theodore C. Stewart, 27, son of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Stewart, of 534 N. Lincoln ave., and Ralph H. Hixenbaugh, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Hixenbaugh, of 484 N. Lincoln ave.

When their ground school training at Ellington field is ended, they will be sent to an advanced school of navigation where they will qualify for second lieutenant's commissions in the U. S. army air force's reserves.

See-Saw Battle Reported In Ukraine Sector Below Kharkov

GERMANS USE HUGE MASSES OF TANKS

Berlin Claims That Reds' Attack Has Collapsed Completely

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, May 23.—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's shock troops were reported fighting from newly fortified positions before Kharkov today and a Red Star dispatch said the Germans were "having alternate successes" in flanking counter-attacks to the south despite a loss of 15,000 killed there in three days.

One Soviet gain was reported officially in the Kharkov sector.

"Our units dislodged the enemy from a powerfully fortified position," the information bureau said.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, reported a see-saw battle in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector, a Ukrainian region below Kharkov in which the Germans concentrated huge forces to attack several points simultaneously. Russian defenses, however, were described in this first press report from that front as solid.

The Germans hurled three groups of tanks into a narrow sector in an effort to drive a wedge into the Russian lines, the dispatch said, but the Soviet troops destroyed 39 of the tanks and then drove the invaders back several miles with a counter-attack.

"During the night of May 22-23 our troops in the Kharkov direction consolidated their positions and engaged the enemy in offensive battles," a mid-day communique reported.

The Russians, prior to today's Red army dispatch, have never conceded a German gain in the effort of Field Marshal Gen. Fedor Von Bock to turn their left flank and divert Red army manpower from the big Kharkov push.

Reds Halted, Say Nazis

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), May 23.—The German high command announced today that the Russian mass attacks on Kharkov had collapsed completely and military quarters added that German troops have shifted to the offensive in the gigantic battle for the Russian city.

On the northwestern front, the German high command added, the Russians were continuing attacks southeast of Lake Ilmen but without success.

A Vichy broadcast recorded by the British news agency Reuters also said a powerful German counter-attack had thrown Russian troops back to their original positions on the Kharkov front.

A JOB OF SELLING TO DO

The government now has officially swung around to gasoline rationing as a means of conserving tires, which is what it always has been in the middle west. While Washington was making up its mind to tackle this reality, a lot of confusion was generated that is going to be hard to get rid of.

As a national policy, gasoline rationing can be justified by the fact that Japan robbed the United States of 90 per cent of its rubber supply by the successful attack on Pearl Harbor; it was the hardest blow at this country's national economy that could have been struck. It is too bad that Washington has minimized the gravity of the situation in what apparently was desire to soothe the people's nerves over the disaster.

In addition to the national need to conserve rubber, Germany's successful submarine raiding on Atlantic coastal shipping has made gasoline rationing in eastern states essential for another reason—an actual shortage of gasoline. All the hair-splitting and figure quoting that have been done to prove and disprove this have not altered by so much as a single gallon the fact that Germany has sunk many tankers and in general tied up coastal shipping. The east's gasoline supply today is being furnished at the expense of railroad and truck traffic acutely needed for other purposes.

The government has a job of selling to do to establish gasoline rationing as a war measure. So far it scored more errors than triumphs, but preparatory to extending rationing to the middle west and far west, it must reverse the score. From now on, truth is its best weapon—the truth about the impending disaster of a transportation breakdown if tires are not conserved—now.

WORTH A TRY

The concern in high quarters over the shipping shortage is becoming acute enough to penetrate the minds of dry land naval experts—so it must be serious. Briefly, it's a problem of decreasing shipping losses or giving the Axis powers the one chance left to them to win the war—by doing it before the weapons to stop them can be distributed from the "arsenal of democracy".

Many weeks ago Sen. Brooks of Illinois proposed something that sounded at the time as though it could make plenty of trouble for submarines working in close to shore. Since he spoke, the raiders have begun to operate in the Gulf of Mexico and the Gulf of St. Lawrence; the idea may be better now than it was then.

Utilize some of the thousands of low-powered planes owned in the United States to make an "umbrella" over coastal shipping, Sen. Brooks proposed. Equipped with two-way radios and depth charges, designed to fly slowly and with thousands of civilian pilots available to man them, the planes are a potential military asset of great value. All that needs to be done is to use them; it will take a little organizing. No one paid the slightest attention then. Perhaps if the senator would speak up again, someone might pay attention now.

WE'RE GOOD, TOO

A momentous thing has happened to Americans in the last six months. They have quit feeling apologetic. It is time to start talking about the better attitude that has been substituted.

The reasons for the better attitude are plain Americans quit kidding themselves after Pearl Harbor and began looking at things squarely. They realized what a lot of nonsense had been passed from hand to hand in the name of wisdom the last few years.

They weren't going to enjoy any God-given right to survive at the expense of the suffering of other people; they were going to have to fight for their lives, too. They were going to have to be as alert as the enemies who had planned to attack them. They were going to have to be as shrewd, as resourceful, as dynamic, as brave—and all the other virtues of a warring nation.

They didn't know whether they had it in them or not. They thought they did, but it had been a long time since they had tested themselves. So they began testing. The results were favorable. They proved at Bataan and Corregidor that they were courageous, if not very shrewd. They proved in their factories that they could be dynamic and resourceful.

In the raid on the Marshall and Gilbert islands, in the battle of the Coral sea, in the exploits of volunteer United States aviators in Burma, they saw proof of their fighting ability. America went to war. Americans discovered they still had it in them to fight for survival when their sweet reasonableness fizzled out.

Meanwhile, they were cheered by Russia's demonstration that the strongest thing about the German army has been the weakness of its opponents; that any good army was a match for it. They saw the British air force turn the tables on the German luftwaffe. They read about the successes of their own aviators and planes against the Germans and the Japanese.

And it dawned on Americans everywhere that they were good, too, at this war business when they turned their hand to it—a discovery that is going to loom large in the chapters of history that will be written about the plot of a despot named Hitler, an autocrat named Mussolini and a gang of Japanese sword wielders to conquer the world.

Nine years ago, Jimmy Doolittle quit air racing at the age of 36 because he said he was too old to race any more. And we venture Tokio wishes he had lived up to his promise.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, May 24.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of fairly active and productive conditions, which may prove decidedly constructive if pursued with resourcefulness, energy and fresh ideas. Important projects may get a good start for further development if properly launched and with assistance or decisive cooperation of influential personages.

Those whose birthday it is may have a fairly active and enterprising year with new and important projects receiving a moderate degree of impetus from skillful preparation of proper plans and constructive programs. The latter may call for the agreement or corroboration of influential persons, and may not be so sure of public assistance or approval. Much depends on personal effort.

A child born on this day should have much practical talent and initiative with enterprise, resourcefulness and constructive ability and skill for success.

For Monday, May 25

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a most propitious and progressive state of affairs, with all things of a public as well as private nature forging on to high goals of success and achievement. It may be a time to work for promotion, preferment and favors from those in high places.

Those whose birthday it is are urged to work with confidence and fidelity toward attaining their most ambitious and cherished objectives, with the friendly support and favors of relatives, superiors and those in power.

A child born on this day should have great ambitions, which may be furthered by loving relatives as well as powerful friends.

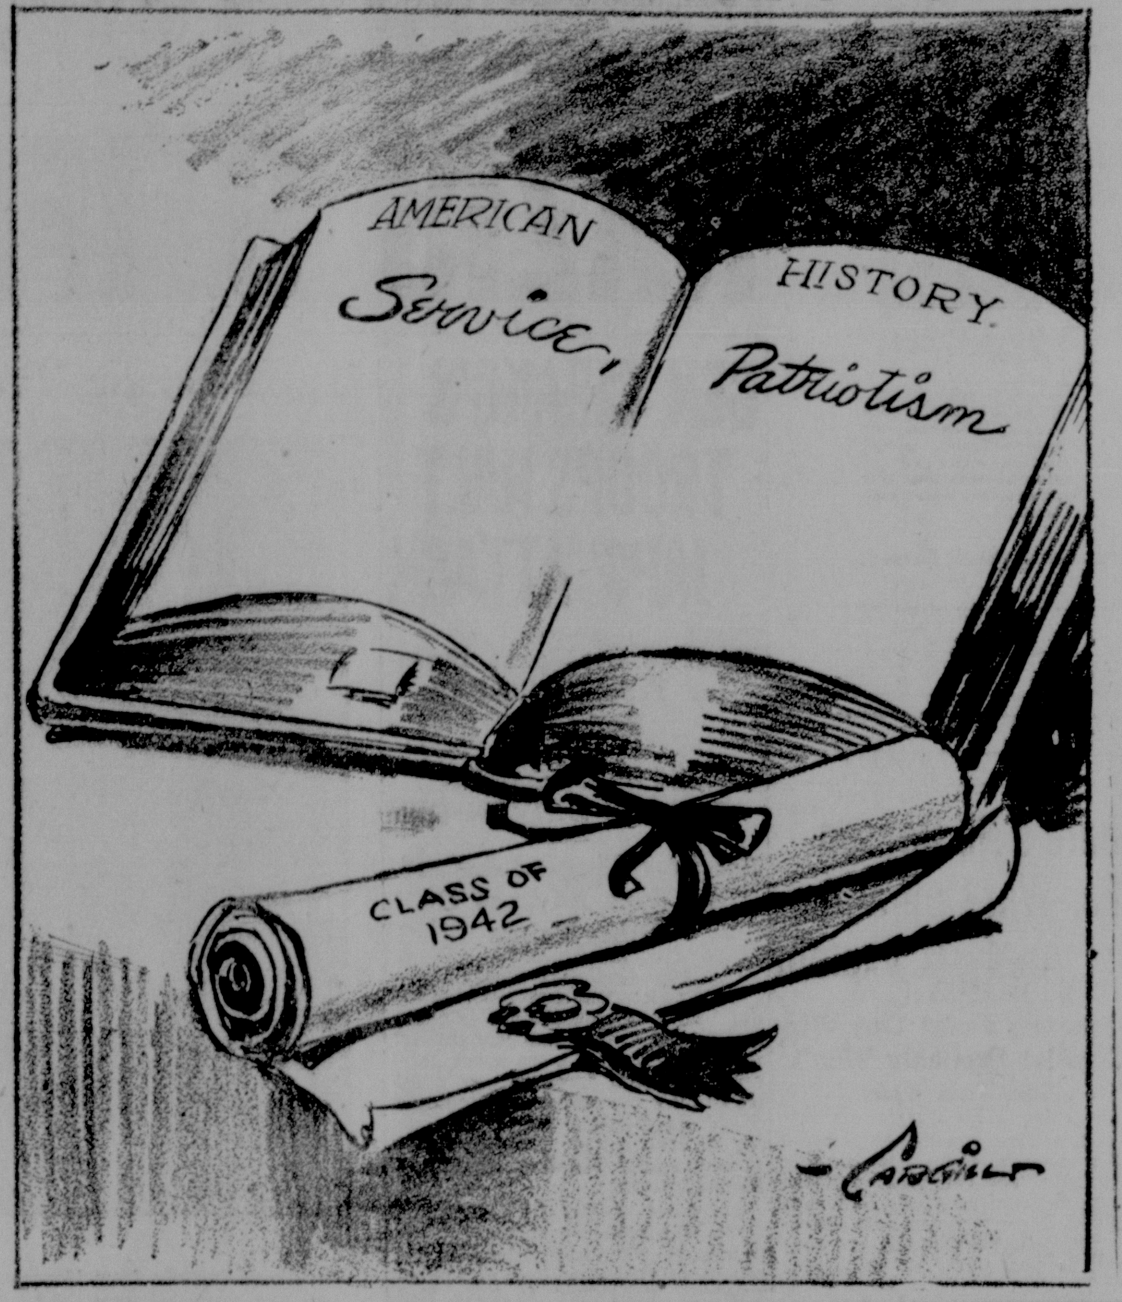
ANOTHER CHANCE FOR THE ROLE OF HONOR



CLENDENING DISCUSSES LONGEVITY

• • • •

It's Not Question of Heredity, Says Physician

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE OLD question of the relative importance of heredity and environment in relation to longevity and disease will probably never be settled by statistics. It is too complicated a problem and too many elements enter into it for that.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, for instance has recently published a study from which they conclude that a good environment seems to be of greater weight than long-lived parents in determining the individual's prospect for long life. But it takes a good deal of interpretation of their statistics to work out the conclusion.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Most Important Factor

Anybody who has lived as long as I have must be pretty well convinced that longevity in parents is the most important factor in the longevity of individuals. But, of course, there are exceptions. I know of a number of families in which I know the parents have lived to a very ripe age, but several of the children have died of entirely intercurrent disease. For instance, in one such family one child died of pneumonia and one child died of hemrrrhage from an ulcer of the stomach. Three others are still alive and look as if they are going to attain the same age as their parents.

The pneumonia and the hemorrhage were simply accidents on the road of life which have no hereditary implications at all. Certainly nobody inherits pneumonia, and it is very doubtful whether ulcer is hereditary. If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusions entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality

The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per cent below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

Orphanhood has a detrimental and lasting effect on the health of young peoplle. The children in broken families are more poorly housed, fed and clothed and receive less medical attention than other children. More of them are compelled to go to work at young ages and therefore at unskilled jobs.

Conclusions Hard To Accept

It is difficult for me to accept the conclusions of the Metropolitan. I have seen too much to the contrary and when you get away from long lines of statistics and actually see families that you know, you are convinced that heredity is the most important factor in longevity.

The difference between the statistician and a family doctor is the same as that between a man in an airplane, who soars over a community and sees thousands of people from far off, and one who lives in one place and gets to know all the neighbors from the time of birth to the time of death.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. C. M.: Does a running ear, associated with common colds and other childhood diseases, always mean that the ear drum has been perforated? If the ear drum is not perforated; where does the discharge come from?

Answer: It always means that the ear drum is perforated. The condition merits immediate attention by the best practitioner who can be obtained.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Washington Calls Again!

Retailers and their customers frequently have been called upon to change established habits to help win the war. All have responded to every call—promptly, willingly, patriotically.

Now the nation is called upon to revise credit practices in compliance with governmental order (Regulation "W"), already in effect.

Salem charge customers will experience little inconvenience in meeting Uncle Sam's credit terms. You have followed for years a conservative system recommended by your stores. Now war economy finds you prepared.

Salem stores render bills on or about the first of each month, payable by the tenth. Regulation "W" does not change this. It does say, however, that no further credit may be extended to the few who fail to pay by the tenth of the second calendar month following the calendar month in which purchases are made.

Prompt payment of your accounts will meet government requirements and help win the war

As for Budget Accounts: On most items carried by member stores, down payment must be at least 1-3 of the purchase price. Not more than 12 months, in some instances less, can be allowed for the balance. Payments must be at least $5 per month or $1.25 per week.

Questions arising in the minds of credit customers should be discussed personally with store credit departments. They are prepared to assist you in every possible manner.

CRIME AT CASTAWAY by EDITH BRISTOL

SYNOPSIS

Desperately in need of work, Gerry Lane becomes secretary to Walter Gregg, wealthy owner of Castaway Ranch, despite the warning of her predecessor that the people there are queer. Arriving at Castaway, she meets Estelle Gregg, the contractor's wife, a sophisticated, bleach-blonde; Sydney Loftus, Estelle's cynical son; Martha, Gregg's middle-aged sister, who manages the household and breeds race horses; Harry Craven, Gregg's business manager, a dapper, moustached individual with piercing black eyes; and Lance Gregg, the contractor's bronzed, sturdy nephew. Gerry's employer is recuperating from an automobile accident and has already retired. At dinner, Lance mentions that someone is in the cabin at Hidden Cove, and everyone is obviously upset by the news. A sense of foreboding envelops Gerry. Who was the unknown guest? Next morning, Gerry meets Walter Gregg and instantly likes this strong, unhappy man, who obviously feared someone or something. He cautions her that his files are confidential and must be locked and the key given to his personal servant, Kobe. Leaving his study for the day, Gregg asks Gerry to finish the Durfee file first. She learns from it that Worth Durfee had lost a court case to Gregg over a boundary. Later, Durfee had "accidentally" sent Gregg's car hurtling over a cliff, seriously injuring the contractor. The latter won a $50,000 damage suit. The case is under appeal and Durfee is trying to have Gregg accept a compromise cash settlement. A strange woman slips in through the window of the study. She says she has a message for Mr. Gregg from Miss Dawson at Hidden Cove. Gerry goes to summon Martha and when she returns the woman and a picture of Gregg, which hung over the file, have disappeared. Martha discounts the incident, adding that she has a duplicate photo, and no one need know anything about the theft. "I've been keeping worries from my brother for years. He has plenty of them." Martha suggests that Gerry stop work and stroll with her.

CHAPTER FIVE

We strode on through the twilight, the air growing cooler, the loud beating of the surf below the only sound until my companion spoke again.

"You heard us talking last night at dinner about some people being in Hidden Cove cottage?" I nodded. She went on. "Hidden Cove lies straight ahead of us about two miles. I should have known who was there when my nephews spoke of seeing smoke—but we've had so much trouble with tramps breaking in—they come from the highway beyond Castaway—that it never occurred to me it might be people who had a right to be there. It's Pauline Dawson and her maid, Florabelle Hunt."

Dawson—that was the name mentioned by the woman in white.

"The one you saw was the maid. Pauline Dawson calls herself 'Miss,' but she's really Mrs.—she's my brother's divorced wife. She took back her maiden name when they were divorced ten years ago, and we were glad to have her take it back. My brother settled a good sum of money on her, but she ran through it in the first year, and since that time he's been supporting her, although she really has no legal claim on him." A thought flashed through my mind—those checks I had filed. Every month, in the big check book, there were sizable checks to P. G. Dawson. The picture was taking form.

Miss Gregg went on. "Yesterday while I was up at the stables, Miss the key from my brother and took possession of the cottage. I'm only sorry I didn't know it sooner and I could have saved others from bothering about it. But only a few weeks ago—while Miss Baldwin was here, I think—Miss Dawson was getting ready for a cruise to the South Seas. I helped pack her trunks myself—and that's why I was sure she was gone."

Relief swept over me like the breeze from the Pacific that blew around us.

"I'm so glad that there was no harm done by my letting Miss Hunt come in—and get away again," I said.

"Id probably have thought to tell you tonight," Martha said, "but this morning, what with the hurry of helping Estelle and Sydney get ready to leave for the city and, with the vet coming again to look at the colt, it slipped my mind. So just forget it."

I promised I would , and we turned, striding through the purple windswept twilight, back toward the ranch house, where a few lights twinkled now in the windows. Miss Gregg chuckled.

"What Florabelle Hunt would want with a framed photograph of my brother is something I wouldn't know," she said. "She's plain poison to him. I get along with her all right, but I get along with most people."

She would, I reflected. With her steady, solid determination, her force, so like her brother's. Martha Gregg was a character able to stand between him and intruders, to smooth the way for both his wife and his divorced wife, to handle the management of this highly complex household. My admiration for Martha was increasing steadily.

"I have a hunch that you're just the secretary my brother has been looking for, Miss Lane," she went on as we strode down the slope of the garden. "If you are staying here you'll be meeting the women from the cove—if they stay, and nobody can tell about that—so I'll bore you with a bit more family history. You'd never think it now, but when my brother married her, Pauline Dawson was the prettiest girl in Gallina. However, since that time she's let herself be carried away with all kinds of cults and causes. One year she's a vegetarian and shudders at the thought of a beefsteak. Next year she's a mystic and wears white robes and studies with yogis and swamis and what-have-you. Mrs. Gregg—Estelle—doesn't like having Miss Dawson around, and I can't say that I blame her much."

Odd,. how that brief but pointed conversation over the telephone with a girl I had never met would keep coming back to me from time to time since I came to Castaway. "There's one woman who comes to the ranch that's goofy as a hoot owl," she had said, and Miss Dawson and her maid arrived, got son had been there, according to Martha, while Miss Baldwin was playing her short role as secretary. All that she had told me, so far checked up with the facts as I found them. Would her fears and forebodings prove to be equally sound? I wondered as we crossed the patio and entered the lighted, cheerful living room.

Lance, the nephew, didn't come to dinner but Harry Craven, the assistant, did. And his coming added to the entries in the little blue book that was my diary. One short, significant note was sounded that night at dinner. And if I had heeded its warning—just as if I had realized the importance of that stolen photograph—and had gone to Walter Gregg with my suspicions, perhaps he might have averted the whole long train of evil that lay before us.

I listened to Harry Craven—but I listened witout understanding that what he was saying was a warning of the tragedy to come.

But I did not know. I did not act. I did not speak. And who can tell? Perhaps if I had acted it might have made no difference in the course of events at Castaway!

If I could have known, that night, what Harry Craven's words were to forecast! If I had understood—but I did not understand!

Dinner on my first night at Castaway had been a painful ordeal of strain and tension, hidden, deeper feelings, masked by an attempt at casual words.

But dinner tonight, after I came is with Martha—the night Harry Craven held the center of the stage—was cordial and cozy. The three of us—Martha Gregg, Craven and I—sitting in the redwood-panaled dining room, seemed safe and secure in contrast to the blustery night outside as the freshening wind whipped the boughs of the eucalytus trees against the house.

I was so deeply, so profoundly grateful to Miss Gregg for her display of friendly confidence in me that afternoon, as she told me of the family problems of Castaway, that nothing could have shaken my admiration and gratitude. I needed a friend after my long weeks of futile job hunting and my depths of discouragement in the city, and since our walk over the windblown hills, I felt that in Martha Gregg I had found one.

Then, too, the manner of Harry Craven seemed to have changed that evening—and for the better. My first impression, apparently, was due for a revision. Craven could me, when he wanted, an entertaining talker. He spoke with a touch of humor, knew much about horses and their trainers, and he and Martha devoted most of their conversation to chatter of Bay Meadows and Tanforan—a world ofwhich I knew nothing.

Hoodoo, the ailing colt, was better, I learned. Track favorites and their records Craven knew by heart—prospects for the coming season were as familiar to him as to Miss Gregg, and I listened, enchanted, at the talk of this world of the track.

One thing impressed me throughout the dinner conversation—that was Miss Gregg didn't much care for Craven, that being the polite hostess was a part of her "get along with everybody" program, and that she didn't particularly trust her brother's young assistant. But she did love horses. Horses made a good, safe subject to talk about, and Craven, on his part, was purposefully being agreeable, I soon learned.

Ohio's High School Athletes Seek Fame At State Meet

TRACK NO. 1 EVENT AS FOUR-PLY SHOW GOES INTO FINALS

East Tech, Springfield Favored To Battle For "A" Title

BY FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, May 23—The chips were down today, and 1,000 Ohio High school athletes were set to battle it out for the state's scholastic championships in golf, tennis, baseball and track-field. The entrants are the survivors of more than 20,000 who started down the county - district - state tournament trail several weeks ago.

Baseball and golf were almost at the halfway mark, despite postponement of a portion of yesterday's preliminary program. The tennis squads were to see their first action during the morning and a Sunday session was expected to wind up the affairs of court.

Track-field, the No. 1 event on the four-ply show, was due for decision today in both class A and Class B, regardless of the weather. Events will be scored on a 6-4-3-2-1 basis, the winner getting six points.

Preliminaries were run off in five Class A and five Class B track events yesterday. In the big league defending champion Cleveland East Tech qualified four men, Springfield's snarling Wildcats five.

Xenia O. S. and S. O. home, Class B king of the cinders the last two campaigns, qualified only one man in the dashes and hurdles—in which the Cadets won three first in 1941—but the Greene county boys still were favored to reign again since most of their present strength is in the field and distance competitions.

Sylvania Leads in Golf

Sylvania was out front in the golf competition by five strokes at the halfway mark, the defending champion Upper Arlington quartet skidding to a three-way sixthplace tie with 354, nine strokes off the pace. Pete Sohl, defending individual champ from Upper Arlington, had a chance to retain his laurels, however, as he was tied with John Zoller of Hamilton Public for medal honors with 78, two ahead of the pack and six over par.

Closest behind Sylvania were Worthington and Tiltonville with 350, while Youngstown Rayen and North College Hill, the pre-tourney favorite, had 352 each, Lima South and Hamilton Public were deadlocked with Upper Arlington. Back of them came Mansfield 356, Toledo Devilbiss 361, Dayton Fairview 369, Shaker Heights 371, Dayton Oakwood 380, Canton McKinley 380, Logan 389, Elyria 391, and Gallapolis 409.

The lower-bracket Class B baseball team reaching the finals must play three games today, Yorkville, Chardon, Columbus St. Charles and Webster Township not getting into action yesterday. Still in the Class A scrap, with semi-finals slated this afternoon, were Marion Harding vs Greenfield McClain, and Tiltonville vs Columbus North.

Reading and Vaughnsville, winners of yesterday's Class B contests, meet at noon for a finals berth opposite the ultimate winner among the lower bracket quartet.

The track program calls for 14 events in each class. Baseball titles are decided in each division, too, but the golf and tenns competition is wide open, no distinction being made between the small and large schools.

Boston Slugger Accepted For U.S. Navy Enlistment

BOSTON, May 23.—Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox' slugging outfielder who was the object of harsh criticism from baseball fandom when he appealed his 1-A draft classification last winter, has been accepted for enlistment as a seaman, second class, in the United States navy.

The elongated Ted, who led the American league hitters with an amazing .406 average last season, had kept his application secret during Boston's last swing through the west—apparently afraid he might not pass the navy's stiff examinations.

U. S. TRAINS AIR COMMANDOS, LEADS IN PILOT TRAINING

Navy To Loose Fighters On Axis Powers In Near Future

By GAYLE TALBOT
(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—In the not too distant future, the United States navy will start turning loose against the Axis powers the toughest, roughest, most physically accomplished set of fighting pilots that ever kicked a plane about the sky.

They will be the first products of Lieutenant-commander Tom Hamilton's new naval aviation physical training program, the first commandos of the air.. Their entry into the world conflict will herald a revolutionary change in pilot training and serve notice on the axis powers that this nation has decided to fight on the basis of no holds barred.

This new super-airfighter, when he has completed his 12 months of training, will know about all there is to know about "hand-to-hand" fighting. That is only a refined way of describing back-alley fighting. He will have been taught by experts..

He will be able, in case his plane is disabled and he lands in the water, to keep afloat for four or five hours or to swim four or five miles in full equipment. That is the minimum prescribed by Commander Hamilton.

From long hours of boxing he will know how to absorb punishment and how to throw his "Sunday punch." He will have a highly-developed feeling for teamwork and aggression, derived from football, basketball and soccer. From actual experience he will know how to "live off the ground;" how to survive for an indefinite period in wilderness or desert and to return eventually to his unit.

How important and necessary the navy considers this radical new method of training its airmen may best be judged, perhaps, by the fact that it will add five months to the period previously required to turn out a fighting pilot—a year instead of seven months. But, painful to say, it is necessary because our young men have grown soft in the last 20 years.

The first of the navy's new preflight physical foundries will open May 28. Eventually, the system is designed to turn out 30,000 flying commandos each year.

DEAN, PAIGE MEET IN ALL-STAR GAME

CHICAGO, May 23.—Dizzy Dean and his million dollar arm will come out of retirement tomorrow to pitch a couple of innings—or less—against Satchel Paige in Wrigley field.

The great one, bought by the Cubs from the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938 for $185,000 in cash, will be supported by speedballer Bob Feller and John Grodzicki. Feller, former ace of the Cleveland Indians, will come from the Newport, R. I., naval base, and Grodzicki, former Pittsburgh Pirate flinger, will report from Fort Knox, Ky.

The game will pit the Dean all-stars, consisting of former major and minor leaguers, most of whom now are in the armed forces, against Paige's all-Negro contingent of Kansas City Monarchs. The only contribution guaranteed for a fund is Feller's game salary, which he will donate to naval relief.

Cards Release Hayworth

ST. LOUIS, May 23—Ray Hayworth, catcher, was given his unconditional release today, bringing the club's roster to 25 men, the limit allowed after May 25.

Ted Ends Controversy, Signs Up

Ted Williams, Red Sox star and baseball's leading slugger, is pictured at the Boston naval recruiting station phoning his mother after enlisting in the naval air corps as a second class seaman. Williams has been the center of national controversy since he was placed in a deferred classification by his draft board on grounds that he supported his mother.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Think you have headaches? How'd you like to trade for the job of running a chain of minor league clubs for some big league outfit? . . . Besides the normal supply of holdouts, sore arms, injuries, etc., this season you'd have players taking defense jobs where they can make more dough, night games being ruled out if your park is too near the coast, customers from out-of-town staying at home to save their precious gas and tires, that new ruling against chartering buses—and maybe six patches on the right rear tire of the bus your class "C" team owns, a lot of hurry-up calls to replace players who were drafted or enlisted. . . . And on top of all that, you don't know whether to go out and sign up a lot of promising 16 and 17 year old kids for next year because you don't know whether you'll have any clubs operating.

Practice Makes Perfect, Eh?

In three years as a member of the Temple U. track team, Johnny Lupoli never was able to win a race. . . . Last spring he decided to call it quits and play baseball instead. . . . But when examinations kept him from taking a southern trip with the ball team, he asked to go along with the track squad on a shorter jaunt. . . . Johnny won both the 100 and 220-yard dashes against Bucknell, and now he swears he'll never again train for sprinting.

Today's Guest Star

George R. Farrar, Jr., Woonsocket (R. I.) Call: "If the elasticity in the major league baseball waiver law were the only rubber, then there would be no need for Mr. and Mrs. Baseball Phan to conserve their precious rubber tires and tubes."

NIGHT GAME ADDS TO TRIBE BURDENS

CLEVELAND, May 23.—The first Saturday night game in Cleveland Indians' history probably will be played tonight.

Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh wasn't happy about it either, because the battle will add to the Indians' burdened schedule, by making them play three games in 24 hours. And in the next nine days the schedule calls for 13 contests.

Peckinpaugh had little choice after the weather caused postponement of the Tribe's first floodlight game yesterday. Usually night games are confined to week-days, but today was an open date and the vice president explained, "We couldn't do anything else but play tonight, unless we wanted to put the game off until September." The Tribe has another Saturday night game scheduled Aug. 15.

Jim Bagby will be trying for his seventh victory tonight—if the game can be played.

Johnny Niggeling, the knuckleball specialist, will fire for St. Louis.

The Tribe also plays Sunday in a doubleheader against St. Louis.

HEAD GIVEN FIRST LOSS AS BROOKLYN BOWS TO N. YORK

Braves Close Gap, Smash Phils, 10-7; Chisox Take Detroit

Almost anything can happen in the seven major league baseball games scheduled today, but a sure winner in two of them is the Army-Navy relief fund.

Proceeds from games in the nation's capital, where the New York Yankees meet the Washington Senators, and at Boston, where the Red Sox take on the Philadelphia Athletics, will go to help care for the families of those who fall on the fighting fronts.

The two contests are part of a series of 16 scheduled in the two leagues for the fund.

An added attraction at Boston will be a curtain- raiser between service teams, with sailor Bob Feller pitching for the navy nine and soldier, Hugh Mulcahy opposing him for the army squad.

Only six teams saw action yesterday.

In the long afternoon game, moved up to daylight by New York's ban on night baseball, the Giants bumped Brooklyn's national league leaders, 5-1, handing the Dodgers their second straight defeat and Pitcher Ed Head his first loss after five trimuphs.

The second-place Boston Braves chopped another half-game off Brooklyn's margin and reduced the Dodger lead to five lengths by whipping the Philadelphia Phils, 10-7. Ernie Lombardi poled a home run and four singles in five trips to the plate for the Braves.

At Chicago, the White Sox downed the Detroit Tigers, 7-4, in the only American league game, hanging up their eighth victory in ten starts. Johnny Humphries was credited with the victory.

CANTON CLUB BLUE SOX RIVAL SUNDAY

Either Herman Allison or Marvin Wukotich will be on the mound tomorrow when the Salem Blue Sox tangle with the Canton Weaver Taverns in a return go at Centennial park. Mel Wukotich will probably be behind the plate.

The locals lost a verdict to the Canton club on their home grounds just two weeks ago. They are still after their first win and may come through tomorrow.

In the infield for tomorrow's tussle will be Al Catlos at first, Paul Wukotich at second, Paul Scullion at short and M. Mileusnic at third, while in the outfield will be Julius "Thunder" Kovach in left, Dan Kenst in center and Carl Field in right.

The game will get under way at 3 o'clock.

Charley Gehringer Back On Active Player List

DETROIT, May 23 — Charlie Gehringer, retired to the inactive list last winter after 17 years as second baseman of the Detroit Tigers, became an active player again today after spending the first month of the 1942 season on the coaching lines.

General Manager Jack Zeller said Gehringer would continue as a coach but would be available as a pinch hitter.

Peep At Nazi Plane Engine Shows U. S. Gaining Ground

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Wide World Aviation Editor

INDIANAPOLIS,—American Engineers tore down a standard German aircraft engine the other day to see what was on the inside.

And what they found out augurs well for the United States in the battle of production of war machines.

It would be self-delusion to assume that American factory methods, of themselves, will constitute a ticket to victory over the Axis, but what Detroit calls the "know how" of making things in quantity apparently is bearing fruit in the drive for air superiority.

In-Line Type

The German engine was of the in-line, liquid-cooled type which Marshal Goering uses exclusively to power his pursuit planes.

Its design was more complicated than comparable American-made engine now in wide use on five continents. Its parts did not appear to be as interchangeable as American parts, and it did not produce as much horsepower for the weight engineered into it.

These things are important because they supply an index to the kind of job the United States has ahead in producing mechanical devices for land, sea and air warfare.

From the time Hitler came to power in 1933 German industry was girded for the conflict to come.

When the war began in 1939 with the march on Poland the Germans had a type of airplane engine on which they had worked intensively for years.

Yet, today, less than two years after the first production model of the same kind of engine began rolling off the assembly line of the Allison factory here in Indianapolis, the United States is producing a more efficient power plant for its defending interceptor planes.

This country had worked to design a powerful, dependable engine, too.

If that indicates a practical application of American know-how, better aircraft engines are to come under the pressure of the war effort.

Used In Four Planes

The Allison engine is being put into four different makes of pursuits—the Airacobra, the Curtiss P-40, the Lockheed P-38 and a North American plane.

Little by little, British-designed Rolls Royce liquid-cooled engines, similar to the Allisons, are being substituted in certain pursuits for the engine designed here. The Rolls Royce are regarded by some aircraft makers as superior at present to the Allisons.

But engineering research continues, and the Allison people hint lightly of developments to come. They already have produced an experimental engine, of far more than 2,000 horsepower, or more than twice the power output of the standard in-lines employed by the Axis, by gearing together two of the regular Allisons.

The American automotive industry has developed some new tricks to simplify the production of their products in shipment.

Salt air has a bad effect on an engine. Allison wraps its engines in an Akron-made, pliable and transparent substance which is completely moisture-proof for transport abroad.

For added protection it hangs a little bag of chemicals behind a window in the box for inspection in transit. When the humidity in a box gets too high, the chemicals change color.
